DRY ARMY WILL FIGHT WETTEST CITY

WILL SPLIT PROHIBITION FORCES IN THE OHIO-MICHIGAN DISTRICT

And Will Use One Unit To Concentrate On Detroit, Michigan, Rum Runners—Walker To Stay—Stone Is Moved From Cleveland To Plug Holes Along Michigan-Canadian Border—Will Try To Stop the Flow of Liquor Into the States.

Because "Detroit is the wettest city in the United States," the Ohio-Michigan national prohibition district, with its offices in Columbus, has been divided into two districts.

William H. Walker, who has been administrator for the combined district, will continue as Ohio administrator and the Ohio district office will be maintained in Columbus. Thomas E. Stone, veteran of the customs and revenue service and considered one of the government's most able battlers of the rum forces, will become administrator of the new Michigan district and will concentrate on Detroit.

Mr. Stone has been a deputy administrator under Mr. Walker, operating in Cleveland. His recent activities have been toward breaking up of large alcohol and rum running rings. He was instrumental in bringing to indictment in Cleveland 135 persons involved in an alcohol distributing ring that operated in every large city in the east and central west.

Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran, passing thru Columbus Saturday, gave a hint of Thursday's shift when he said Detroit is the wettest city in the United States and presented the most difficult enforcement problem. He has completed a tour of large cities and reported in Washington.

While Mr. Walker did not comment on the change, it was understood that shifting of the Detroit problem to a separate administration would allow the Columbus office to concentrate on Ohio's own prohibition problem.

Records for Michigan will be removed Monday, Mr. Walker said. The present Detroit suboffice force will be transferred to other districts, it was said.

The shift was ordered by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman, who indicated other changes might follow.

"This change is part of a plan of the prohibition, customs and coast guard services to plug the hole that allows thousands of cases of whisky to flow from Canada into the United States," Mr. Lowman was quoted in Associated Press dispatches. "Unsatisfactory enforcement conditions in Detroit caused it."

A new determination to stamp out

MISSING AVIATORS

The United States navy today authorized Admiral R. H. Jackson, Pacific fleet commander to carry on for four more days his intensive search of the Pacific for the five missing Dole race aviators.

The authorization is for continuation of the search by 42 naval vessels until Tuesday, when if they are not found, further steps may be taken. Navy officers expressed belief the great fleet would cover the Pacific waters between California and Hawaii thoroughly in that time.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

The remains of Alice Olivia Potter, who passed away at the home of her nephew, Dennis Adams, in Dayton, Wednesday, will be brought here for interment in Forest cemetery Saturday morning at 10:30 o'clock. Services will be held at the grave. Rev. S. W. Hiles, of the United Brethren church, officiating.

rum running was seen at Detroit in announcement that Michigan is to have its own enforcement district.

Consensus of opinion was the new arrangement would prove an aid to enforcement but would not completely stop rum running across the Detroit river.

Detroit cannot be made dry in 30 days or 30 years," was the recent statement of Police Commissioner Rutledge. Federal officials admitted liquor running continues at a lively pace despite a doubled border patrol during the last few months and establishment of a rum blockade.

A recent survey put Detroit's weekly liquor bill at $1,500,000, with 10,000 liquor sources served by runners. Scene of most of the smuggling is near Ecorse, where the Michigan shore is dotted with boathouses.

OFF ON VACATION

Agent J. H. Drum of the Scioto Valley Railway & Power company, of this city, accompanied by his wife and son, James, of this city, and R. Stewart Drum, of Marietta, have gone on their annual vacation. They will visit her brother, E. E. Kreachbaum, at Van Wert; her sister, Mrs. C. L. Hart, at Charlotte, Michigan, and will attend the annual Genesee reunion to be held at Potter park, Lansing, Michigan, and will also visit at Detroit, Jackson, Battle Creek and Cogan Lake, Michigan, before returning home.

MARKERS FOR HIGHWAYS ON EXHIBITION

System Will be Explained at the Ohio State Fair by the Traffic Bureau.

Increased interest in the marking of the state highways has been shown by motorists, and an opportunity of having the system explained has been arranged by the traffic bureau of the division of highways thru their exhibit at the Ohio State fair.

This exhibit will include a complete display of all route markers, warning signs, signals used in marking the state routes and United State highways in Ohio. Just recently the route signs of black and yellow were replaced by the black and white standard federal route markers. As a consequence of the erection of these new signs several routes have been changed so that certain state routes coincide with federal ones.

In connection with this exhibit of the traffic bureau will be a booth at which a copy of the official Ohio highway map and the booklet Ohio Highway Guide will be distributed.

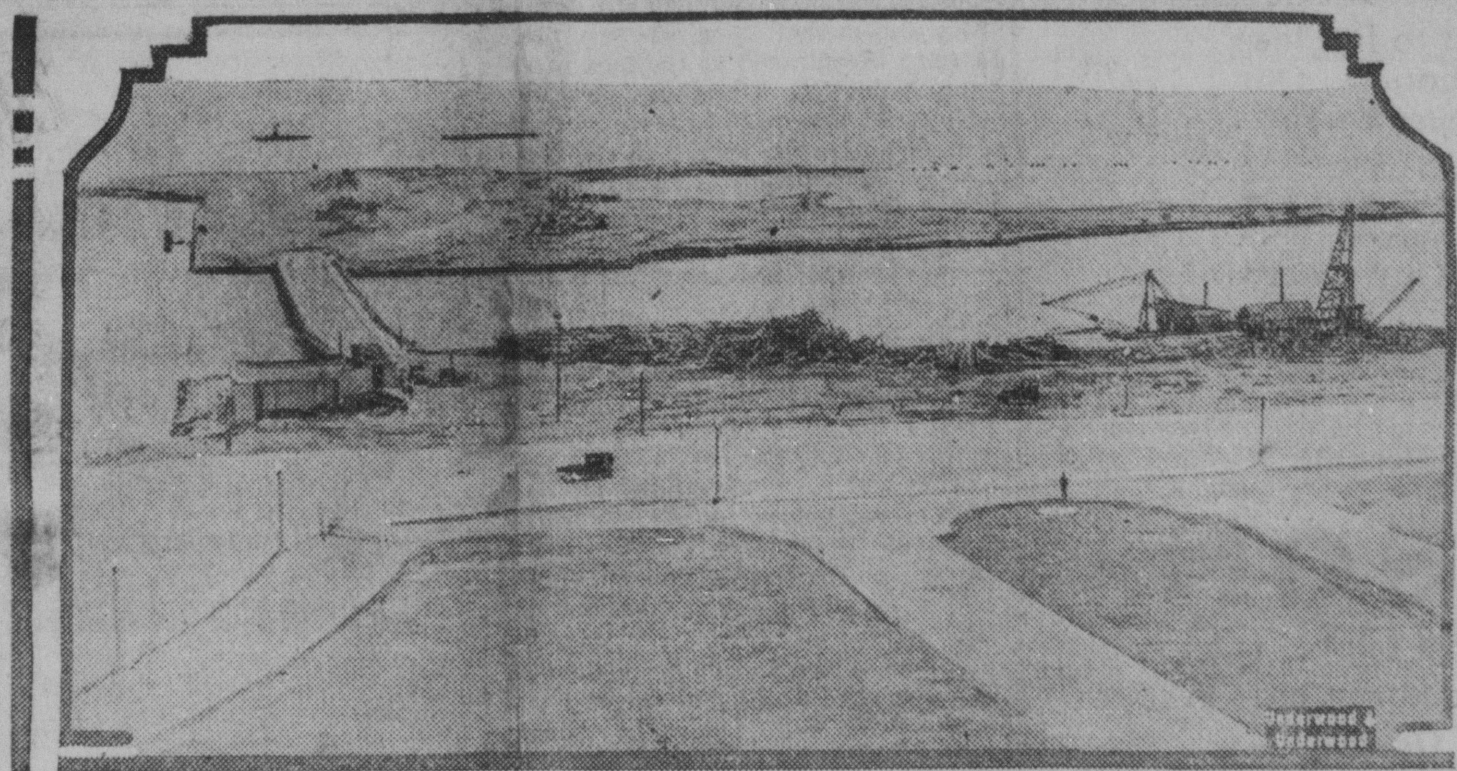

GO WEST YOUNG MAN

Taking Horace Creeley's advice, Howard Phillips, son of Denny Phillips, of this city, started a week ago for the west, his destination being Yellowstone National Park, where he will seek employment as a ranger. He left intending to make the trip a hike, but would not refuse a lift on the way by an auto. He has been heard from and is now Montana.

12 ACRES OF CELERY

Mr. Voss, of the firm of Kuntzman & Voss, of Galion, was in the city Friday, jobbing celery. The firm has a twelve acre patch growing in the marsh lands near Galion. They sell their product all over the state themselves and do not place it with commission men.

Chicago Rushing Work on New Air Port

Fast work is being done in the making of Chicago's new lake front air port, which is on the island shown in this photograph. It is a part of the south park system and is connected with the mainland by a temporary bridge.

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Steubenville — Pennsylvania railroad officials today started an investigation into the wreck last night of the fast Pittsburgh-Bellaire flyer at Costonia Curve, seven miles east of here. Altho the wreck was termed the worst in years on the Cleveland-Pittsburgh division, only two persons were seriously injured.

Bucyrus — Five members of one family are dead, victims of a grade crossing accident on the Pennsylvania railroad last night.

The dead; Ben Collins, 52, and his wife, 55; James Collins, 28, their son Dorris Collins, 9, and Bettie D. Collins 7, grandchildren. The five were killed at a crossing in a field while on their way in an auto to a picnic.

Steubenville—Smith Field Junction little mining and railroad center northeast of here was under heavy guard today following a near riot Thursday and reports that another outbreak against non-union miners is brewing.

Cleveland — Mine union officials realize that violence will bring troops into the strike areas and ruin their cause, according to Colonel L. S. Connelly, who has returned to Cleveland from a tour of service as official observer, for Governor A. V. Donahey in Belmont county.

Columbus — Ohio physicians who do not report cases of infantile paralysis coming to their attention will be prosecuted under the state sanitary laws, Dr. John E. Monger, state director, announced today.

BRIEFLY TOLD

—Glenn Vanscoy will enter St. Xavier's college, Cincinnati, this fall. He will be succeeded at the Logan Gas company by Even Merriman.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS PICNIC
Circle City Camp, Royal Neighbors of America, the auxiliary lodge of the Modern Woodmen, held a picnic at Dewey park Thursday evening. This was the lodge's first outing this year. A basket dinner was given and a dance followed. The event was much enjoyed by all present. About one hundred and fifty persons were present. A number of visitors from out of town were in attendance.

H. S. Heffner, Milt Morris, George Mack and Samuel Foll, were business visitors in Columbus today.

J. L. CORKWELL DEAD.

John L. Corkwell, aged 80 years, of Chanute, Kansas, died suddenly at the home of his nephew, C. E. Dick, in Cleveland, August 11. He was born in Monroe township, Pickaway county, Ohio, and was married to Miss Hannah Bailey, sister of Adam Bailey, of Mt. Sterling, later moving to the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were on their way to Mt. Sterling to attend the Bailey reunion and stopped off in Cleveland to visit their nephew and family. While there Mr. Corkwell took ill suddenly and died. He had served as judge of court in Kansas. He was the last child of the Benjamin Corkwell family.

Mrs. Corkwell and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dick accompanied the body to Chanute where a Masonic funeral was held in the home on August 14.

POWELL JONES

Died at His Home Friday Morning—Funeral Services From Baptist Church.

Powell Leonard Jones, colored, died at his home on Maplewood avenue, at 7 o'clock Friday morning. The deceased had been ill four years and his death was due to complications.

He was born in Raleigh county, West Virginia, February 11, 1880, and was a son of James and Anna Clark Jones. He came to this city eight years ago.

Mr. Jones married Miss Vina Wade in 1920, in West Virginia. He was a member of the Baptist church and belonged to the colored Odd Fellows and Elk lodges, Columbus.

His wife and three stepsons survive. They are James, Humphrey and John Jones, of this city. Of his immediate family four sisters are living. They are Misses Mary, Amanda, Lucile and Callie Jones, of Athens, West Virginia.

Funeral services from the Second Baptist church Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. R. D. Grant. Interment in Forest cemetery.

DELIGHTFUL MOTOR TRIP.

The Name in the Mirror
By RUBY DOUGLAS
(Copyright.)

DORIS GRAHAM had returned to spend the summer at the quiet, cliff-built summer resort where she had been so carefree and happy five years before.

"But isn't it a stupid place to live in for three months?" asked her chum in the office.

"It wouldn't suit you," admitted Doris.

"And that dreadful trip every day," lamented the other girl.

Doris was not to be discouraged. She wanted to get away from the city, wanted to sleep in the country, wake up in the country, have her Sundays and Saturday afternoons in the open.

And so she had established herself in the plain, old country boarding house that she had lived in when her mother was with her and life looked rosy and merry. Now, she was tired, a trifle discouraged at the lack of variety in her life. There was a vacancy she could not quite analyze but she ascribed it to the fact that she could not get accustomed to living without her dear mother.

On her first free Saturday afternoon, she wandered about the old village streets.

"I'll just go down to the post office to wait for the distribution of the late mail," she said to herself, as she neared the little group of shops of which one was the post office.

This had been one of the merriest of meeting places for all the young folks of the summer resort. There, in its homely prosaic enough atmosphere, many a budding romance had first colored into life.

It was as she was entering the post office five years ago that she had first seen Archie Olmstead. The thought now quickened her breath, sent that forlorn hurt straight to her heart.

What had become of him? Why had she never heard from him?

How many times she had asked herself that question only to find herself unanswered.

She found a letter for her from the girl in the office who, secretly, would have enjoyed being with Doris, but who hesitated to invite herself.

Doris, thrilled at receiving a letter from the hands of the same postmaster who had stood behind the window thumbing the letters five years before, stood beside the scratched and disfigured wall to read it.

As some one pushed against her, she moved. She bumped her head, ever so slightly, against the corner of the glass-faced wall cabinet that held unclaimed letters.

For a moment she stared at the envelopes posted inside. Suddenly, she started. There was her own name—Doris Graham.

Hastily, she sought the postmaster and told him that there was a letter in the case that was addressed to her. Together, they got it and Doris, fearing, somehow, to read it in the midst of so many eyes as were upon her, put it in her bag.

When she was alone she opened the envelope. It was a letter from Archie. In it, he told her this was the third one he had written and if he received no answer this time he would decide that she had amused herself for a summer by making him fall in love with her.

If she wrote one letter over that week-end, to Archie, she wrote a dozen. None suited her. She could not seem to find words in which to tell him all that had been in her thoughts of him, since they had met. She wondered where he was. Could this address be the right one?

On Monday, at the office, she tried again, this time on her typewriter. It was a stupid letter. She destroyed it.

It was still light when she arrived in the country these June nights and she decided that she would be able to pen a short note to Archie if she used the post office pen and ink on the old shelf desk where they had written each other so many tender notes in other days. With a piece of paper in her bag, she went to the village and wrote to Archie. As she stood looking at the much-used blotter on the shelf, her handbag open with its mirrored back, a familiar scrawl was reflected in it.

She held the mirror over the blotted name. Yes—it was his name in his handwriting. Her heart thumped madly. He must be here—in this very town—now. The name had been written that day.

Posting the letter she had written, she hurried back to the boarding house.

When the motherly old landlady came forward, she saw that they had met on the walk leading through the arch of maples. She had remembered their early romance. She was gratified at its renewal.

It took the whole evening to explain the strange tricks Fate had played them during the years of their separation. But the faith of each of them was unshaken and Doris found herself later comparing the great happiness of her present summer with the shallow, frivolous gaiety of that holiday five years ago.

"And I knew all the time," Doris heard from her chum at the office, "that there must be some good reason for your craving for that stupid summer resort—some other reason than the country air."

Wild Spending of Sudden
Wealth Stops.

Pawhuska, Okla.—The Osage Indian,
who has been groping around trying
to find some satisfactory way to spend
his oil riches, at last is achieving success.

Where seven years ago the Osage
was bewilderedly surveying his bank
book and trying to see how fast he
could spend his mounting wealth on
fancy motor cars, fine clothing and
other gewgaws, he now is contentedly
building fine homes, buying pure-bred
live stock and reaping benefits from
his millions.

The shock of sudden wealth, which
came when oil wells spouted black
gold all over the hill-dotted Osage
prairies, floored the tribe for nearly
ten years. The government stepped in
with a law restricting the disposal of Indian money to curb the spending
orgy.

Two classes of Indians were established by this law—the competent and
the incompetent. The competent indian could draw his full allotment
each quarter, while the incompetent
could draw only $1,000 of his allotment, the remainder going into a trust
fund at Washington.

Under this law there were certain
items, however, for which money
could be withdrawn from the trust
fund. One of these was for the purchase of live stock.

Since January 1 figures at the
agency here reveal that more than $30,000 has been allotted to the restricted members of the tribe for the purchase of pure-bred live stock. This,
however, is but a small portion of the
total expenditure for this purpose, as
thousands of dollars have been spent
by the competent members of the tribe.

Henry Tall Chief, a full blood, owns
one of the finest herds of shorthorns
in the state. He has 40 registered head that cost him $12,000. He owns
a modern home and is one of the leaders in a movement to interest his
tribesmen again in tilling the soil.

Fight for Healthier
Cows Aids Dairy Farms

New York.—Ten years ago the Department of Agriculture inaugu-
rated a campaign against bovine tuberculosis. Opposition was great. What
is at least partial success, however,
was reported by Dr. John R. Mohler,
chief of the bureau of animal industry, at a recent eastern states tuberculosis conference. While almost
1,000,000 dairy cattle out of 30,000,000
head tested have been destroyed because of their tubercular state, the industry today is in better condition than
it was in 1917, Doctor Mohler said.

Fear expressed by many persons in
the beginning that the campaign
would turn the public taste against
milk consumption proved unfounded,
according to Doctor Mohler, who says
the annual consumption of milk in
the United States has increased more
than forty-nine quarts per capita
since 1918. During 1926 the public consumed 56,000,000,000 pounds of
milk and cream, an increase of 2,000-

Society Girl Heads Personnel Business

New York.—Miss Jessie Jerome
Fanshawe, daughter of the late William S. Fanshawe, banker, and well-known socially, is heading a successful business venture of her own. It
was learned.

She maintains a bureau of personal
service, with a force of workers.

Miss Fanshawe's service is novel in
that it does things for people that
they ordinarily find troublesome to
do themselves. For instance, she will close a town house or apartment, after a family has gone to Europe or Newport, and then set the house in order for their return.

She provides chaperons for debautantes during the season in town, and
also fills rush orders from hostesses
who are giving dinners either at their
town or country residences and who
want some form of entertainment.

Recently during a charity drive,
Miss Fanshawe was called upon to
follow up in some way the appeal that
had been made to thousands by letter.
She immediately put in three special
telephones, engaged girls with "attractive" voices and 5,000 telephone calls
were made.

Irish Coins to Portray Pig, Bull, Dog and Hen
Dublin.—A half-crown horse,
a florin salmon, a shilling bull,
a sixpenny Irish wolfhound, a threepenny hare, a penny hen
with brood, a halfpenny pig
with litter and a farthing woodcock are the designs emblematic
of Ireland's products, which will be seen on the new Irish Free
State coins shortly to be issued.
But Ireland had to go out of the country for patterns, for a young Yorkshireman designed them.

NOT A KILLERFamous Hero of Black Hills
Says He Has No
Notches on Gun.Sioux Falls, S. D.—How many notches are there on the unerring weapon of Deadwood Dick—otherwise plain Richard Clark, yet a resident of the Black Hills—whose exploits, or imagined exploits, furnished the theme for hundreds of dime and other novels? Deadwood Dick himself answered this momentous question with the laconic words:"Not one."
Then, as if he realized this was hard to believe, he added:"I tell the truth."
This confession was made to Fred
J. Croft, resident of the Missouri river section of South Dakota, who during a recent visit to the Black Hills had the pleasure of riding with Deadwood Dick from Belle Fourche to Deadwood.

Thought Him Bogus Hero.

At first Mr. Croft believed the man beside him was some make-believe acting the part of Deadwood Dick of story-book fame, but old-timers who were present assured him that Deadwood Dick was the only original Deadwood Dick, scout and sharpshooter of Black Hills stagecoach days.Deadwood Dick during the journey
told the central South Dakotan much of the story of his life. How he piloted
the first stage coach into Deadwood in 1876, almost two years after he arrived in the Black Hills with early gold seekers. He pointed out the old stagecoach trails, and at one point on the journey pointed out two "snacks"
in which he lived in those early and exciting days and where several of his children were born.Deadwood Dick is an old man now,
but spry and active. Mr. Croft states he wore a splendid suit of buckskin.Deadwood Dick related to Mr. Croft how stagecoaches in the Black Hills
were first protected from Indians and road agents by outriders. These were horsemen, one of whom rode ahead of the coach and the other in the rear.The riders were "armed to the teeth," as were the two coach guards,
one of whom sat beside the driver and the other facing the rear on top of the coach. Passengers were carried in the stagecoaches, as were also mail, express and valuables of all kinds. It was in the protection of their valuable cargoes, that the scouts and guards became famous in the new West. This was before the days of the famous
"armored treasure coach."Deadwood Dick was asked: How many men did you kill? How many stage holdups were you in? How many times did Indians attack your party and kill and scalp all but you?
How many times was your life saved
only by the swiftness of your horse or
the sureness of your trusty weapon?
To all of these questions Deadwood
Dick modestly replied:

"Not one; I tell the truth."

Some Given to Exaggeration.

Deadwood Dick intimated that some of his "pals" during the early and exciting days of Indians and road agents
were inclined to paint their experiences red with the blood of imaginary
conflicts.In the dime novels and other literature of the period reckless writers
credited Deadwood Dick with all kinds of deeds of valor, with routing whole
bands of ferocious Sioux Indians
single-handed, and with making road agents "bite the dust" before they had time to "tickle a trigger."If there was a shipment of gold to be sent out of the Black Hills by stage, Deadwood Dick hauled it. First, because every one knew he was "true
blue," and because he used his head and could outwit pursuers. He "knew the game" and could beat the other fellows at it.Old-timers say a close mouth was the greatest asset of a stage driver
in the old days, and in this particular Deadwood Dick shone with considerable luster.Honeymoon Left Out, Bride Deserts GroomBoston.—William Alexander,
possessor of a Scotch brogue,
recited to Judge McCoolle of the Suffolk Probate court the incidents of his married life of eight hours. He sought and obtained a divorce on the ground of desertion. He said that he married his wife, Catherine, now living in Lowell, in that city in January, 1924. After the ceremony they went to the home he had prepared in Boston.As the hour of ten o'clock approached he suggested to her,
"It's time to go to bed." She did not agree to this, he said,
but he carried out his own inclination and retired. During the night he awoke to find her still absent and going to the kitchen found her sitting by the stove. He went back to bed and on awakening the next morning
heard her telephone to her brother to come and get her. This the brother did.When asked for an explanation of this somewhat unusual
conduct on the part of a bride,
Mr. Alexander offered, "It was because I did not take her away
on a honeymoon.""10 O'CLOCK LINE"
FOUND IN INDIANAIndians Insisted on Survey
From Shadow of Sun.Indianapolis.—When tourists roaming through southwestern Indiana see signs bearing the words, "Ten O'clock Line," it does not signify that the cur-few zone of Toonerville has been pushed out into the countryside. It means simply that 110 years ago the Indians were sure the sun would not fool them whereas the white man might.When pioneer surveyors staked out
the territory acquired through the Harrison purchase, the Indians insisted that the boundary lines be placed
by projecting the shadow of the sun
and a staff at ten o'clock in the morning. The white man might manipulate
a rod and compass, but never the sun.
The land acquired was bounded by lines drawn from what now are Brownstown to Orleans, to Meron, to Raccoon creek in Park county.Boundary Retains Name.
As a consequence of the aborigines'
suspicion, the boundary of this colonial acquisition of what now is coal land and fertile river bottom cornfields came to be known as the "Ten O'clock Line."Into the chronicles of contemporary events are crowded many picturesque occurrences and historical conclusions,
such as are found in anonymous documents pertaining to early Hoosier surveys."It is but a flight of the imagination," says one of these pamphlets belonging to Col. Richard Lieber of the state department of conservation.
"To conclude that the 'Ten O'clock
Line' made William Henry Harrison
President of the United States."

Tecumseh Opposed Cession.

This reasoning was derived from knowledge of Tecumseh's methods with his Indian warriors. The chief insisted that land was held in common by all Indians and that no individual tribe nor small confederation
had the power to cede tracts of any size to the colonists without the consent of neighboring tribes.Acquisition of the Harrison purchase, 2,900,000 acres, obtained
through a treaty reached at Fort Wayne, December 30, 1809, was the last straw to this sturdy defender of Indian rights. After continual bickering, of which the "Ten O'clock Line"
episode was a memorable incident,
Tecumseh incited the Indians to resist the pioneering Virginians, and the result was the Battle of Tippecanoe.
From this came the successful
political battle cry of "Tippecanoe and Tyler, too."SAMUEL C. GAMBLE

Samuel Coover Gamble, a member of the bar of Pickaway county, Ohio,
died at his home, 313 South Court
street, Friday afternoon, August 12, 1927, at 3:45 o'clock.Mr. Gamble was born at New Holland, this county, on January 19, 1851. He was married July 24, 1888, to Miss Rose C. Wittich, who, together with one niece, Mrs. Stewart
Smith, of Washington C. H., survives. He graduated from Dartmouth college in the class of 1876,
and later from the Cincinnati Law school, was admitted to the bar in 1880, and immediately located at Circleville, Ohio, where he practiced his profession continuously until stricken with his last illness a few weeks preceding his death.Mr. Gamble was one of the most highly respected citizens of the community in which he dwelt. He did not choose to engage in the strenuous
work of the advocate and trial lawyer, but devoted himself to the important but quieter phases of the practice and became an eminent authority upon the law of real property. His opinion was highly valued and much sought on question of title
and the construction of wills and in matters touching the administration of the estates of deceased persons.For many years preceding his death, he was identified with various building and loan companies of the city, as a director and attorney, and many hundreds of thousands of dollars were invested without loss by these companies by reason of his sound business judgment and legal learning. He encouraged and assisted many a poor man in the city of Circleville to purchase a home.Mr. Gamble possessed a strong and pleasing personality and was devoted to his family and friends.Honest and faithful, the remembrance of his exemplary character
and life, with its fine traits and qualities, will abide with us an inspiration forever.Be It Resolved, That the president

Need for Speed

What President Wilson said was the best negro story he had heard since his arrival in Europe, he retold to the American newspaper men during the return voyage across the English channel after his visit to London. Here
it is:

A group of negro soldiers were in a front line trench on the eve of an attack. A white officer approached
one of them and asked:

"What would you do, Jim, if you
suddenly saw the whole Germany cavalry coming straight at you?"

"What would I do, boss?" repeated
Jim. "Why, I sure would spread the news through France."

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union Herald:—Alice Oliva
Potter was born at Circleville, Ohio,
July 18, 1845, and died at Dayton,
Ohio, August 17, at 6 p. m., aged 82
years and one month.

Miss Potter was the daughter of William R. Potter, whose death occurred in 1890, and Mary Jane Moore
Potter, who died in 1893. Her maternal grandfather, Thomas Moore, was a soldier of the war of 1812 and with his wife, Elinor Kirkpatrick, is buried in the old High street cemetery, having been among the early settlers of Circleville.

Miss Potter lived in Circleville all her life until her removal to Dayton
in 1900, except during the Civil war,
when the family resided in Elyria
for a few years. She will be buried in Forest cemetery in the family lot where her father and mother and one brother, Byron, are buried.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs.
Rosalind Moore, 618 Ferguson avenue
Dayton; a nephew, Dennie W. Hain, 124 Floral avenue, Dayton, Ohio,
with whom she resided the last few months of her life and William Potter, Mrs. Alice Jamison, Mrs. Amy Reeder, Mrs. Mildred Cleveland, all of Columbus, the children of her brother, the late William T. Potter.

Mrs. Noah Spangler, daughter of the late George Moore, is a cousin and Mrs. Belle Myers, formerly of Circleville is also a cousin.

Funeral services in Dayton Friday afternoon at 2:30 and a short service
will be conducted at Forest cemetery,
this city by Rev. S. W. Hiles, pastor of the United Brethren church Saturday forenoon at 10:30 o'clock.

Medicine Sent by Raft

To give medical relief to the tiny West Indian island of St. Vincent, the liner Andes, on its way from South America to Lisbon recently, went 170 miles off its regular course. It had received a wireless S. O. S. that influenza was raging among the islanders and remedies were scarce. The liner approached within a mile of shore, and to prevent the disease spreading to the ship, the needed supplies were placed on a raft built for the purpose, the natives rowing out
to it.

AMUSEMENTS

Ritzzy Brown ritzed a real duke and persistently pursued a masquerader
in ducal guise until she was brought to her senses in a London hotel and thereby hangs a tale—one that forms
the story of Elinor Glyn's uproarious screen comedy "Ritzzy" the second Glyn vehicle for Paramount since returning to the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

"IT" her first comedy, proved a brilliant starring vehicle for Clara Bow's flaming personality. "Ritzzy"
was created as a starring vehicle for that dainty little Paramount star, Betty Bronson, who first won international popularity in "Peter Pan"
and has since steadily forged her way
to screen fame in a succession of excellent characterizations.

"Ritzzy" suits the vibrant personality of this petite luminary as well
as "IT" did vivid Clara Bow. In "Ritzzy" one finds those same strong threads of dramatic interest relieved by gems of hilarious comedy that characterized "IT."

Opposite Miss Bronson is James
Hall in the role of the Duke of West-borough traveling as plain Harrington Smith. With thoughts of a title uppermost in her mind, Ritzzy ritzes
the real duke and concentrates all attention upon Algy, Harrington's friend, who has been persuaded to don a ducal guise for the occasion.
With William Austin, the Monty of
"IT" as the reluctant masquerader,
the fun waxes fast and furious. Joan Standing, George Nichols and Roscoe
Karns complete the cast.

"Ritzzy" arrives at the Met theater today. Richard Rosson, director of "Blonde or Brunette" directed.

FOOD OF SQUIRREL
DEADLY TO HUMANS

Poisonous mushrooms seem to have no terrors for the lively red squirrel
of the woods, according to Robert T.
Hatt of the biology department of New York university. He noticed during his researches in the field that red squirrels fed freely on two poisonous species, and that they seemed to prefer them also when they came to store food for the winter. Incredulous,
he tried mushroom diets on caged red squirrels, and found that they selected
the same two species out of a variety of edible fungi offered to them. The poisonous mushrooms are the so-called fly agaric, Amanita muscaria,
which is reputed to be almost invariably fatal to human beings and is sometimes used as a fly poison, and a reddish-colored species known as Russula emetica, which has a disagreeable peppery taste and if eaten raw will provoke violent vomiting. The reason for the immunity enjoyed by the squirrels
is as great a riddle as their apparent
preference for these two toxic species.

About Term "Family"

The term "family," as used in the census, signifies a group of persons,
whether related by blood or not, who live together as a household. One person living alone is called family,
and all the people in a hotel or institution are known as a family.

Apron for Little Girls; It Can Be Easily Made

This little apron pattern combines many good features, says the Woman's Home Companion. Its chief asset is that it will not slip off the shoulders and little girls wearing it in cooking classes or at play will not be bothered by this nor by its pulling up at the back of the neck. The amount of material necessary has been cut to a minimum and the design is so simple that a little girl will have no difficulty in making it for herself.

Knee Bracelets Gaining Popularity in America

Knee bracelets, although not entirely new, are gradually being accepted by American women. No doubt it will be a long time before they achieve the place that the ankle bracelet now holds. This, by the way, is not so great as compared with the vogue it has had abroad for several years. These bracelets remind one of the fancy jeweled garters worn by knights of old. They are made of finely woven mesh with stone settings throughout, or else of links, and in both instances finished with very ornate clasps. A new bracelet is made of from eight to ten strands of small beads of silver, attached to a very fancy clasp that is set with a stone surrounded by smaller ones and much ornate metal work. This same bracelet may be secured in gold and steel finishes. Roped cords and chains in gold and silver plate are used singly or intertwined and set with stones and form very elaborate designs.

Feature Mannish Lines in Viennese Lingerie

Some of the newest lingerie being made in Vienna is sky blue, Nile green or banana yellow and follows the masculine athletic line. There are short trunks with smoothly fitting yokes and vests cut straight and plain, edged with bias bands. Sometimes there is a monogram on the left side of the vest, and one house shows the monogram repeated on the yoke of the shorts.

Another fashion gaining favor with lingerie makers is nightgowns with cuffs and turnover collars like men's shirts. The three pieces make practical sets, particularly suitable for travel wear.

Waterproof Stockings Now on English Market

Waterproof stockings have become popular with English women of fashion, and showers no longer cause rainmarks down the front of the stockings and mud splashes up the back. The waterproofing employed does not alter the appearance of the silk. Rain rolls off without leaving an impression and the application of a damp sponge removes mud stains. These stockings can be washed again and again without any ill effects.

Use Small Feather Fans as Trimming on Frock

Among the original effects by designers to please the taste of the ultra-fashionable woman is a dance frock trimmed in small fans made of diamond and ostrich feathers. Another novelty is an evening frock with a breastplate of black velvet that is slipped over the head and fits snugly over the bodice of the frock. Another original effect in negligee robes is an embroidery in black of clefs and notes of music.

Natural Skin Tints Are Now Favored by Paris

After experimenting with green, mauve and yellow, Paris has gone back to natural skin tints.

The fashionable make-up of the season is pink and natural flesh. The tan powders are seldom seen now and beauty parlors report a boom in the sale of rachel tints.

Exaggeratedly bright lips, however, usually distinguish the make-up from nature's work.

ATLEE POMERENE HUNTS OIL SCANDAL WITNESSES

Senator Counsel For Government To Use New Law For Serving Subpoenas.

New York, Aug. 17.—Atlee Pomerene, counsel for the government in the Sinclair-Fall conspiracy trial, was bound for Europe today hopeful of effecting the return of two witnesses who have been sought since the start of the Teapot Dome investigation.

Before sailing at midnight with Mrs. Pomerene, the former Ohio Senator said the government probably would use a new law, permitting United States consuls to serve subpoenas in foreign countries, to summon Harry M. Blackmer, former chairman of the board of the Mid-West Refining Company, and James E. O'Neil, former president of the Prairie Oil and

Gas Company, back to the United States. Blackmer was last traced to Monaco and O'Neil was thought to be in Cyecho Slovakia.

Failure to obey summons, Mr. Pomerene said, makes the witness liable to a $100,000 fine which may be collected by levy on the witnesses property in this country.

The oil litigation already has been a highly remunerative undertaking for the government, Pomerene asserted. Between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 has been received from the California Naval Reserve, formerly held by the Doheny interests. He added $13,000,000 is yet to be paid for oil taken from the reserve during the Doheny tenancy.

Tracing Name's Origin
"Shirley" was probably originally a family name used as a Christian name. It is from the Old English "Scir plus leah," meaning "dweller at the white lea or cliff."

BASE BALL

The following letter from the management of the Mead Base Ball Club, Chillicothe, is self-explanatory:

"The coming Sunday the Circleville Eagle Base Ball Club has arranged to meet the Mead Ball Club at Meaco Park, Chillicothe, Ohio. Due to one of the members of the Central League dropping out, Circleville had this date open on their schedule and arrangements have been made whereby they will play this coming Sunday as stated above.

Due to a number of Chillicothe boys playing on the Circleville team, and also because of the amount of enthusiasm shown when Circleville and Chillicothe meet on the athletic field, it was the desire and hope of the Mead Management that such a game could be arranged this year. Consequently, they welcomed the overtures of Mr. Miller, Manager of the Circleville team at the time he mentioned the possibility of this game.

Last season the Mead Club defeated Circleville by a score of

8 to 7 early in the season and later by a score of 4 to 0. Both of these games were hard fought games and a large crowd attended from Circleville as well as a very large turnout of fans from Chillicothe. The Circleville Club no doubt has these defeats still in mind and welcomes this opportunity of somewhat evening the score. Thompson, Targee and Ray Allen are Chillicothe players who have a host of admirers in this city who will be pleased to see them in action Sunday, also as Circleville fans are acquainted with a number of Mead players, they will no doubt wish to take in this game."

Sundial Shadows
In the southern hemisphere the shadow on a sundial travels counter clockwise. As the hands of the earliest clocks moved in the direction of a sundial shadow, our clocks would have hands moving from right to left if they had been made there.

The costliest toy known is a broken-nosed wooden hobby-horse, with an intrinsic value of less than 50 cents, but which brought several hundred dollars at auction because it once belonged to the boy Bonaparte.

NEWLYWEDS TAKE GAS

Decide To End It All When Debts Stared Them In the Face.

Cleveland.—Desire for death today terminated the honeymoon of John Svensson and his 19-year-old bride, Louise, when they turned on the gas in their apartment and decided to end it all.

Mrs. Charles Taylor, a neighbor, smelled the gas when she attempted to gain entrance to the apartment.

Svensson was revived long enough to gasp, "We have been married two weeks. We owe $400 and decided to end it all." They were rushed to City Hospital, where attendants said their condition is critical.

Norway's National Saint

Saint Olaf, born in 995, became king of Norway and was a stern opponent of paganism. He was deposed and the crown offered to Canute, against whom Olaf fell fighting. He was buried in Trondheim cathedral, and became the national saint of Norway.

Old Maynard's Daughter

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright)

FRANK BURLERSON looked up from his desk as a clerk entered the office.

"Well, Simpson?" he queried.

"I wanted to see you just a moment, sir. We have had a letter from old Mr. Maynard at Crow's Nest—you know, near the end of Long Island, and he is very anxious to make a new will—wants one of the firm to come out and see him as soon as possible."

"I seem to be the only firm member in town," Simpson, so I believe I will give myself an afternoon off and run out there. I will telephone to my man to pack my bag for me and bring it down. Tell Carr to put in my brief case the necessary papers and forms and so forth."

Having dismissed these matters, Mr. Burlerson returned to his work of planning what to do with an accumulated income, and about one o'clock he left the office building and headed toward Long Island.

As for Frank Burlerson himself, he was a very trim and good-looking young man.

The only son of a rich man, he had been carefully educated, most of his time being spent at educational institutions of note, while vacations had been spent in foreign travel. His mother had died long ago, and his father was taking a vacation at White Sulphur Springs.

Girls did not interest Frank much. Once his father had asked him when he was going to get married, and Frank had murmured, "When I can find an old-fashioned girl!" How his father had laughed, and then the older man had suggested, "Old Maynard's daughter would suit you, Frank!"

Since then, Frank had heard more about "old Maynard's daughter." One of the older clerks had hinted that she was rather a strong-minded, not-so-young lady, and Frank had forgotten his father's joke.

Late that afternoon, Frank Burlerson drove his car up the long avenue of pine trees that led to Crow's Nest, the home of the Maynard family.

"Mr. Maynard is expecting you, sir," said the butler who opened the door, "but he is lying down. He suggested that perhaps you would go into the garden and talk to Miss Peggy."

"Out of luck," groaned Burlerson, and just then he turned the corner of the house and stood stock-still with amazement. Before him spread a glorious expanse of old-fashioned gardens, colorful, perfumed, with the broad expanse of the sea beyond, blue, appealing—he stepped into the first path and walked toward the sea, forgetting all about Miss Peggy Maynard.

With his eyes on the sea, yet smelling mignonette, pinks, heliotrope, roses and a dozen other enchanting fragrances, Frank Burlerson went straight into the trap of Fate.

"Oh, is it Mr. Burlerson?" inquired a sweet voice.

"Yes," said Frank, and turned around, looking for the speaker, and hearing a faint gurgle of laughter he looked down, and there she was sitting on a bit of clipped grass with her lap full of pansies and mignonette—not the austere lady he had expected, but the most charming bit of femininity that he had ever met.

She scrambled to her feet. Red hair? Yes, indeed, cut short, but waving deliciously close to a snow white neck—a peaches and cream complexion—greeny-blue eyes and a fascinating nose.

"How do you do, Mr. Burlerson?" she said politely. "Grandfather and Aunt Margaret rode over to Greenport this morning and they are both tired. They asked me to entertain you and to say that, of course, you would spend the night?"

"I left my bag at the hotel," explained Burlerson regretfully.

"We can drive over and get it; do you mind?" asked Miss Peggy Maynard as they sat down on a marble bench.

"I bet she's engaged," said Burlerson, out loud, just like that. And immediately turned scarlet. She stared at him, blushed and murmured—"Oh, no indeed, not at all," and then she, too, blushed.

After that, somehow, things went better. Frank Burlerson told her of his surprise at seeing her there.

"Then you were surprised to see me!" she exclaimed. "Not as surprised as I was to see you, though, Mr. Burlerson. I have seen your father, you know, and so I expected to see a very fine-looking elderly man who looked as if he was missing his golf!"

"That's Dad!" laughed Frank. "Sorry to disappoint you," he added, and when she turned away her ruddy head, he could see a bit of the bright color that flushed her cheek.

The next morning he went back to New York, fully aware that he was deeply in love with Peggy Maynard, granddaughter of the old man, and niece of the strong-minded Miss Maynard, who developed to be a handsome white-haired lady of much dignity and charm.

Shortly after that, young Mr. Burlerson developed a state of health that required a period of rest on the east end of Long Island. There is only one proper ending to this story, anyway, and that is the way it happened. Frank Burlerson and Peggy Maynard were married and lived happily ever after!

STAMPEDE AND GREAT RODEO AT STATE FAIR

Largest Number of Cowboys Ever Entered in the East
—$20,000 in Prizes.

Entries in the International Stampede and Rodeo which will be held in Columbus during the Ohio State fair, from August 25 to September 5, have come in at such a rate that this rodeo promises to have the largest number of cowboys that have ever entered at any stampede in the East.

Thursday fifty cowboys, including several from the Caribou Hills of British Columbia, are leaving Vancouver for Columbus. All have entered in the rodeo to compete for the $20,000 offered in prizes. They receive no remuneration for their services, and all they receive will be the prizes they win.

Already one hundred head of horses have been received at the State fair grounds, where they will be kept until time for the fair. All these horses are reported in excellent condition.

Of the sixty-five entries for the world's championship in bronk riding only nine qualified remain. All the others have been declared ineligible at recent rodeos. The nine remaining will compete for the championship at the rodeo which is to be at the fair.

Pete Knight, Crossfield, Alberta, won the Canadian championship at the rodeo held there, and he will remain for the rodeo at the Ohio State fair.

The noted horse "Midnight" has upheld his record thruout the entire season, maintaining the record of throwing his rider every time thus far this year. "Tumblewood," another horse which will be at the Ohio State fair, succeeded in the rodeo at Vancouver in bucking off the winner of the Calgary Stampede.

TIRED?

OF course you're tired of all the extra cleaning that is necessary during the summer months, when wide-opened windows invite all the outdoor dust. Of course you begrudge more than ever—on these beautiful summer days—the extra time that this cleaning takes.

Let The Greater Hoover assume that task for you. With its amazing cleaning principle, "Positive Agitation," it can do a better cleaning job than you have ever dreamed possible—remove 131% more dirt in ordinary cleaning time than even the best previous Hoover!

Surely, you won't try to go through the summer without this great help. Particularly when you realize how easily you can have The Greater Hoover—paying for it in small monthly amounts. Phone for demonstration. Liberal allowance for your old cleaner. No obligation for appraisal.

"Positive Agitation" may now be had not only in the famous Model 700 Hoover, but in a new popular-priced Hoover as well.

DRY ARMY WILL FIGHT WETTEST CITY

WILL SPLIT PROHIBITION FORCES IN THE OHIO-MICHIGAN DISTRICT

And Will Use One Unit To Concentrate On Detroit, Michigan, Rum Runners—Walker To Stay—Stone Is Moved From Cleveland To Plug Holes Along Michigan-Canadian Border—Will Try To Stop the Flow of Liquor Into the States.

Because "Detroit is the wettest city in the United States," the Ohio-Michigan national prohibition district, with its offices in Columbus, has been divided into two districts.

William H. Walker, who has been administrator for the combined district, will continue as Ohio administrator and the Ohio district office will be maintained in Columbus. Thomas E. Stone, veteran of the customs and revenue service and considered one of the government's most able battlers of the rum forces, will become administrator of the new Michigan district and will concentrate on Detroit.

Mr. Stone has been a deputy administrator under Mr. Walker, operating in Cleveland. His recent activities have been toward breaking up of large alcohol and rum running rings. He was instrumental in bringing to indictment in Cleveland 135 persons involved in an alcohol distributing ring that operated in every large city in the east and central west.

Prohibition Commissioner J. M. Doran, passing thru Columbus Saturday, gave a hint of Thursday's shift when he said Detroit is the wettest city in the United States and presented the most difficult enforcement problem. He has completed a tour of large cities and reported in Washington.

While Mr. Walker did not comment on the change, it was understood that shifting of the Detroit problem to a separate administration would allow the Columbus office to concentrate on Ohio's own prohibition problem.

Records for Michigan will be removed Monday, Mr. Walker said. The present Detroit suboffice force will be transferred to other districts, it was said.

The shift was ordered by Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Lowman, who indicated other changes might follow.

"This change is part of a plan of the prohibition, customs and coast guard services to plug the hole that allows thousands of cases of whisky to flow from Canada into the United States," Mr. Lowman was quoted in Associated Press dispatches. "Unsatisfactory enforcement conditions in Detroit caused it."

A new determination to stamp out

rum running was seen at Detroit in announcement that Michigan is to have its own enforcement district.

Consensus of opinion was the new arrangement would prove an aid to enforcement but would not completely stop rum running across the Detroit river.

Detroit cannot be made dry in 30 days or 30 years," was the recent statement of Police Commissioner Rutledge. Federal officials admitted liquor running continues at a lively pace despite a doubled border patrol during the last few months and establishment of a rum blockade.

A recent survey put Detroit's weekly liquor bill at $1,500,000, with 10,000 liquor sources served by runners. Scene of most of the smuggling is near Ecorse, where the Michigan shore is dotted with boathouses.

OFF ON VACATION

Agent J. H. Drum of the Scioto Valley Railway & Power company, of this city, accompanied by his wife and son, James, of this city, and R. Stewart Drum, of Marietta, have gone on their annual vacation. They will visit her brother, E. E. Kreachbaum, at Van Wert; her sister, Mrs. C. L. Hart, at Charlotte, Michigan, and will attend the annual Gennessee reunion to be held at Potter park, Lansing, Michigan, and will also visit at Detroit, Jackson, Battle Creek and Cogan Lake, Michigan, before returning home.

MARKERS FOR HIGHWAYS ON EXHIBITION

System Will be Explained at the Ohio State Fair by the Traffic Bureau.

Increased interest in the marking of the state highways has been shown by motorists, and an opportunity of having the system explained has been arranged by the traffic bureau of the division of highways thru their exhibit at the Ohio State fair.

This exhibit will include a complete display of all route markers, warning signs, signals used in marking the state routes and United States highways in Ohio. Just recently the route signs of black and yellow were replaced by the black and white standard federal route markers. As a consequence of the erection of these new signs several routes have been changed so that certain state routes coincide with federal ones.

In connection with this exhibit of the traffic bureau will be a booth at which a copy of the official Ohio highway map and the booklet Ohio Highway Guide will be distributed.

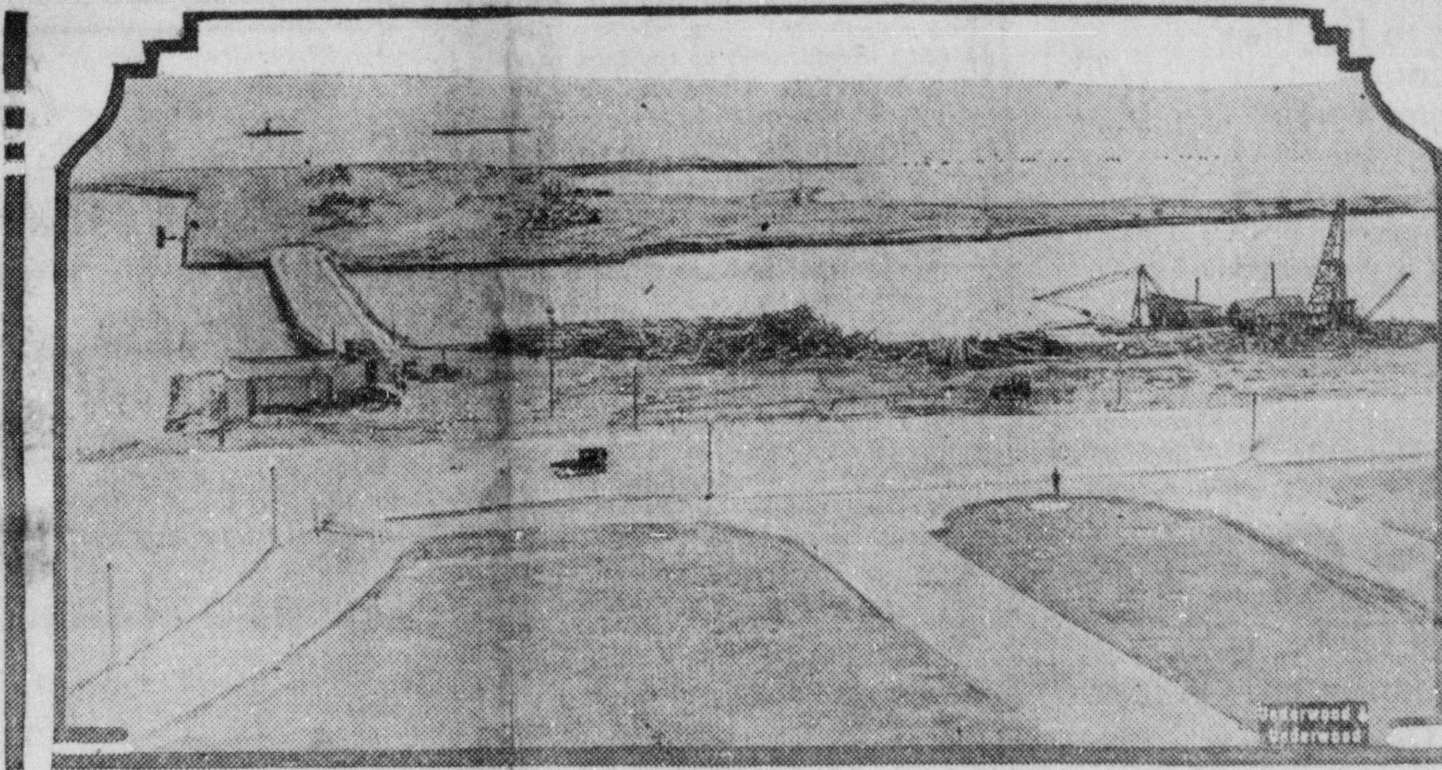

GO WEST YOUNG MAN

HAPPENINGS IN OUR STATE

Taken Direct From Wires By Correspondents of the United States Press Association.

Steubenville — Pennsylvania railroad officials today started an investigation into the wreck last night of the fast Pittsburgh-Bellaire flyer at Costonia Curve, seven miles east of here. Altho the wreck was termed the worst in years on the Cleveland-Pittsburgh division, only two persons were seriously injured.

Bucyrus — Five members of one family are dead, victims of a grade crossing accident on the Pennsylvania railroad last night.

The dead; Ben Collins, 52, and his wife, 55; James Collins, 28, their son Dorris Collins, 9, and Bettie D. Collins 7, grandchildren. The five were killed at a crossing in a field while on their way in an auto to a picnic.

Steubenville—Smith Field Junction little mining and railroad center northeast of here was under heavy guard today following a near riot Thursday and reports that another outbreak against non-union miners is brewing.

Cleveland — Mine union officials realize that violence will bring troops into the strike areas and ruin their cause, according to Colonel L. S. Connelly, who has returned to Cleveland from a tour of service as official observer, for Governor A. V. Donahey in Belmont county.

Columbus —Ohio physicians who do not report cases of infantile paralysis coming to their attention will be prosecuted under the state sanitary laws, Dr. John E. Monger, state director, announced today.

BRIEFLY TOLD

—Glenn Vanscoy will enter St. Xavier's college, Cincinnati, this fall. He will be succeeded at the Logan Gas company by Even Merriman.

ROYAL NEIGHBORS PICNIC
Circle City Camp, Royal Neighbors of America, the auxiliary lodge of the Modern Woodmen, held a picnic at Dewey park Thursday evening. This was the lodge's first outing this year. A basket dinner was given and a dance followed. The event was much enjoyed by all present. About one hundred and fifty persons were present. A number of visitors from out of town were in attendance.

H. S. Heffner, Milt Morris, George Mack and Samuel Foll, were business visitors in Columbus today.

J. L. CORKWELL DEAD.

John L. Corkwell, aged 80 years, of Chanute, Kansas, died suddenly at the home of his nephew, C. E. Dick, in Cleveland, August 11. He was born in Monroe township, Pickaway county, Ohio, and was married to Miss Hannah Bailey, sister of Adam Bailey, of Mt. Sterling, later moving to the west.

Mr. and Mrs. Bailey were on their way to Mt. Sterling to attend the Bailey reunion and stopped off in Cleveland to visit their nephew and family. While there Mr. Corkwell took ill suddenly and died. He had served as judge of court in Kansas. He was the last child of the Benjamin Corkwell family.

Mrs. Corkwell and Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Dick accompanied the body to Chanute where a Masonic funeral was held in the home on August 14.

POWELL JONES

Died at His Home Friday Morning—Funeral Services From Baptist Church.

Powell Leonard Jones, colored, died at his home on Maplewood avenue, at 7 o'clock Friday morning. The deceased had been ill four years and his death was due to complications.

He was born in Raleigh county, West Virginia, February 11, 1880, and was a son of James and Anna Clark Jones. He came to this city eight years ago.

Mr. Jones married Miss Vina Wade in 1920, in West Virginia. He was a member of the Baptist church and belonged to the colored Odd Fellows and Elk lodges, Columbus.

His wife and three stepsons survive. They are James, Humphrey and John Jones, of this city. Of his immediate family four sisters are living. They are Misses Mary, Amanda, Lucile and Callie Jones, of Athens, West Virginia.

Funeral services from the Second Baptist church Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, conducted by Rev. R. D. Grant. Interment in Forest cemetery.

DELIGHTFUL MOTOR TRIP.

Mr. and Mrs. Sterley Croman and son, Forest, have returned from a two weeks' motor trip of the southern states. Among the many interesting points visited were the Natural Bridge in Old Virginia; St. Augustine, in Florida; Stone Mountain at Atlanta, Georgia; Lookout Mountain and Chickamauga Park at Chattanooga, Tennessee. While in Florida they spent one day with Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Jewett, of Havana, Florida. Mrs. Jewett was Miss Alice Anderson, of Washington township.

CAMPMEETING.

The tenth annual council and campmeeting of the Churches of Christ in Christian Union will be held on East Ohio street, beginning Wednesday afternoon, August 24.

The Name in the Mirror

By RUBY DOUGLAS

(Copyright.)

DORIS GRAHAM had returned to spend the summer at the quiet, cliff-built summer resort where she had been so carefree and happy five years before.

"But isn't it a stupid place to live in for three months?" asked her chum in the office.

"It wouldn't suit you," admitted Doris.

"And that dreadful trip every day," lamented the other girl.

Doris was not to be discouraged. She wanted to get away from the city, wanted to sleep in the country, wake up in the country, have her Sundays and Saturday afternoons in the open.

And so she had established herself in the plain, old country boarding house that she had lived in when her mother was with her and life looked rosy and merry. Now, she was tired, a trifle discouraged at the lack of variety in her life. There was a vacancy she could not quite analyze but she ascribed it to the fact that she could not get accustomed to living without her dear mother.

On her first free Saturday afternoon, she wandered about the old village streets.

"I'll just go down to the post office to wait for the distribution of the late mail," she said to herself, as she neared the little group of shops of which one was the post office.

This had been one of the merriest of meeting places for all the young folks of the summer resort. There, in its homely prosaic enough atmosphere, many a budding romance had first colored into life.

It was as she was entering the post office five years ago that she had first seen Archie Olmstead. The thought now quickened her breath, sent that forlorn hurt straight to her heart.

What had become of him? Why had she never heard from him?

How many times she had asked herself that question only to find herself unanswered.

She found a letter for her from the girl in the office who, secretly, would have enjoyed being with Doris, but who hesitated to invite herself.

Doris, thrilled at receiving a letter from the hands of the same postmaster who had stood behind the window thumbing the letters five years before, stood beside the scratched and disfigured wall to read it.

As some one pushed against her, she moved. She bumped her head, ever so slightly, against the corner of the glass-faced wall cabinet that held unclaimed letters.

For a moment she stared at the envelopes posted inside. Suddenly, she started. There was her own name—Doris Graham.

Hastily, she sought the postmaster and told him that there was a letter in the case that was addressed to her. Together, they got it and Doris, fearing, somehow, to read it in the midst of so many eyes as were upon her, put it in her bag.

When she was alone she opened the envelope. It was a letter from Archie. In it, he told her this was the third one he had written and if he received no answer this time he would decide that she had amused herself for a summer by making him fall in love with her.

If she wrote one letter over that week-end, to Archie, she wrote a dozen. None suited her. She could not seem to find words in which to tell him all that had been in her thoughts of him, since they had met. She wondered where he was. Could this address be the right one?

On Monday, at the office, she tried again, this time on her typewriter. It was a stupid letter. She destroyed it.

It was still light when she arrived in the country these June nights and she decided that she would be able to pen a short note to Archie if she used the post office pen and ink on the old shelf desk where they had written each other so many tender notes in other days. With a piece of paper in her bag, she went to the village and wrote to Archie. As she stood looking at the much-used blotter on the shelf, her handbag open with its mirrored back, a familiar scrawl was reflected in it.

She held the mirror over the blotted name. Yes—it was his name in his handwriting. Her heart thumped madly. He must be here—in this very town—now. The name had been written that day.

Posting the letter she had written, she hurried back to the boarding house.

When the motherly old landlady came forward, she saw that they had met on the walk leading through the arch of maples. She had remembered their early romance. She was gratified at its renewal.

It took the whole evening to explain the strange tricks Fate had played them during the years of their separation. But the faith of each of them was unshaken and Doris found herself later comparing the great happiness of her present summer with the shallow, frivolous gaiety of that holiday five years ago.

"And I knew all the time," Doris heard from her chum at the office, "that there must be some good reason for your craving for that stupid summer resort—some other reason than the country air."

NEW-RICH OSAGES

Wild Spending of Sudden
Wealth Stops.

Pawhuska, Okla.—The Osage Indian,
who has been groping around trying
to find some satisfactory way to spend
his oil riches, at last is achieving success.

Where seven years ago the Osage
was bewilderedly surveying his bank
book and trying to see how fast he
could spend his mounting wealth on
fancy motor cars, fine clothing and
other gewgaws, he now is contentedly
building fine homes, buying pure-bred
live stock and reaping benefits from
his millions.

The shock of sudden wealth, which
came when oil wells spouted black
gold all over the hill-dotted Osage
prairies, floored the tribe for nearly
ten years. The government stepped in
with a law restricting the disposal of Indian money to curb the spending
orgy.

Two classes of Indians were established by this law—the competent and
the incompetent. The competent Indian could draw his full allotment
each quarter, while the incompetent
could draw only $1,000 of his allot-
ment, the remainder going into a trust
fund at Washington.

Under this law there were certain
items, however, for which money
could be withdrawn from the trust
fund. One of these was for the purchase of live stock.

Since January 1 figures at the
agency here reveal that more than $30,000 has been allotted to the restricted members of the tribe for the purchase of pure-bred live stock. This,
however, is but a small portion of the
total expenditure for this purpose, as
thousands of dollars have been spent
by the competent members of the tribe.

Henry Tall Chief, a full blood, owns
one of the finest herds of shorthorns
in the state. He has 40 registered
head that cost him $12,000. He owns
a modern home and is one of the leaders in a movement to interest his
tribesmen again in tilling the soil.

Fight for Healthier
Cows Aids Dairy Farms

New York.—Ten years ago the Department of Agriculture inaugu-
rated a campaign against bovine tuberculosis. Opposition was great. What
is at least partial success, however,
was reported by Dr. John R. Mohler,
chief of the bureau of animal indus-
try, at a recent eastern states tuberculosis conference. While almost
1,000,000 dairy cattle out of 30,000,000
head tested have been destroyed be-
cause of their tubercular state, the industry today is in better condition than
it was in 1917, Doctor Mohler said.

Fear expressed by many persons in
the beginning that the campaign
would turn the public taste against
milk consumption proved unfounded,
according to Doctor Mohler, who says
the annual consumption of milk in
the United States has increased more
than forty-nine quarts per capita
since 1918. During 1926 the public
consumed 56,000,000,000 pounds of
milk and cream, an increase of 2,001-
000,000 pounds over the quantity consumed in 1925.

New York.—Miss Jessie Jerome
Fanshawe, daughter of the late William S. Fanshawe, banker, and well-
known socially, is heading a successful business venture of her own, it
was learned.

She maintains a bureau of personal
service, with a force of workers.

Miss Fanshawe's service is novel in
that it does things for people that
they ordinarily find troublesome to
do themselves. For instance, she will close a town house or apartment, after a family has gone to Europe or Newport, and then set the house in
order for their return.

She provides chaperons for debu-
tantes during the season in town, and
also fills rush orders from hostesses
who are giving dinners either at their
town or country residences and who
want some form of entertainment.

Recently during a charity drive,
Miss Fanshawe was called upon to
follow up in some way the appeal that
had been made to thousands by letter.
She immediately put in three special
telephones, engaged girls with "attractive" voices and 5,000 telephone calls
were made.

What President Wilson said was the best negro story he had heard since his arrival in Europe, he retold to the American newspaper men during the return voyage across the English channel after his visit to London. Here it is:

A group of negro soldiers were in a front line trench on the eve of an attack. A white officer approached one of them and asked:

"What would you do, Jim, if you suddenly saw the whole German cavalry coming straight at you?"

"What would I do, boss?" repeated Jim. "Why, I sure would spread the news through France."

IN MEMORIAM

Editor Union Herald:—Alice Oliva Potter was born at Circleville, Ohio, July 18, 1845, and died at Dayton, Ohio, August 17, at 6 p. m., aged 82 years and one month.

Miss Potter was the daughter of William R. Potter, whose death occurred in 1890, and Mary Jane Moore Potter, who died in 1893. Her maternal grandfather, Thomas Moore, was a soldier of the war of 1812 and with his wife, Elinor Kirkpatrick, is buried in the old High street cemetery, having been among the early settlers of Circleville.

Miss Potter lived in Circleville all her life until her removal to Dayton in 1900, except during the Civil war, when the family resided in Elyria for a few years. She will be buried in Forest cemetery in the family lot where her father and mother and one brother, Byron, are buried.

She is survived by one sister, Mrs. Rosalind Moore, 618 Ferguson avenue Dayton; a nephew, Dennie W. Hain, 124 Floral avenue, Dayton, Ohio, with whom she resided the last few months of her life and William Potter, Mrs. Alice Jamison, Mrs. Amy Reeder, Mrs. Mildred Cleveland, all of Columbus, the children of her brother, the late William T. Potter.

Mrs. Noah Spangler, daughter of the late George Moore, is a cousin and Mrs. Belle Myers, formerly of Circleville is also a cousin.

Funeral services in Dayton Friday afternoon at 2:30 and a short service will be conducted at Forest cemetery, this city by Rev. S. W. Hiles, pastor of the United Brethren church Saturday forenoon at 10:30 o'clock.

Medicine Sent by Raft

To give medical relief to the tiny West Indian island of St. Vincent, the liner Andes, on its way from South America to Lisbon recently, went 170 miles off its regular course. It had received a wireless S. O. S. that influenza was raging among the islanders and remedies were scarce. The liner approached within a mile of shore, and to prevent the disease spreading to the ship, the needed supplies were placed on a raft built for the purpose, the natives rowing out to it.

AMUSEMENTS

Ritzzy Bronson ritzed a real duke and persistently pursued a masquerader in ducal guise until she was brought to her senses in a London hotel and thereby hangs a tale—one that forms the story of Elinor Glyn's uproarious screen comedy "Ritzzy" the second Glyn vehicle for Paramount since returning to the Famous Players-Lasky Corporation.

"IT" her first comedy, proved a brilliant starring vehicle for Clara Bow's flaming personality. "Ritzzy" was created as a starring vehicle for that dainty little Paramount star, Betty Bronson, who first won international popularity in "Peter Pan" and has since steadily forged her way to screen fame in a succession of excellent characterizations.

"Ritzzy" suits the vibrant personality of this petite luminary as well as "IT" did vivid Clara Bow. In "Ritzzy" one finds those same strong threads of dramatic interest relieved by gems of hilarious comedy that characterized "IT."

Opposite Miss Bronson is James Hall in the role of the Duke of Westborough traveling as plain Harrington Smith. With thoughts of a title uppermost in her mind, Ritzzy ritzes the real duke and concentrates all attention upon Algy, Harrington's friend, who has been persuaded to don a ducal guise for the occasion. With William Austin, the Monty of "IT" as the reluctant masquerader, the fun waxes fast and furious. Joan Standing, George Nichols and Roscoe Karns complete the cast.

"Ritzzy" arrives at the Met theater today. Richard Rosson, director of "Blonde or Brunette" directed.

FOOD OF SQUIRREL DEADLY TO HUMANS

Poisonous mushrooms seem to have no terrors for the lively red squirrel of the woods, according to Robert T. Hatt of the biology department of New York university. He noticed during his researches in the field that red squirrels fed freely on two poisonous species, and that they seemed to prefer them also when they came to store food for the winter. Incredulous, he tried mushroom diets on caged red squirrels, and found that they selected the same two species out of a variety of edible fungi offered to them. The poisonous mushrooms are the so-called fly agaric, Amanita muscaria, which is reputed to be almost invariably fatal to human beings and is sometimes used as a fly poison, and a red-dish-colored species known as Russula emetica, which has a disagreeable peppery taste and if eaten raw will provoke violent vomiting. The reason for the immunity enjoyed by the squirrels is as great a riddle as their apparent preference for these two toxic species.

Differences in Hair

It is an unexplainable biological fact that curly hair does not grow so long as straight hair.

FREE COAL!

Don't Miss This Once-a-Year Opportunity!

You can join by telephone if you can't come in!

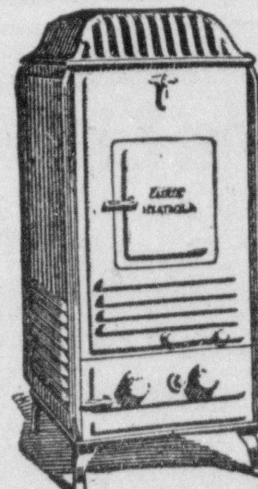

THIS is the last call. If there is any likelihood that you will be in the market for a modern heating plant this fall, we urge you to investigate this extraordinary offer, and then act without delay.

Remember, it costs only $2.00 to join the Free Coal Club, and this amount is applied on the purchase price of the Heatrola.

The beautiful heater and the free ton of coal will be delivered to you early in the fall.

You will not only secure a whole ton of coal free, but from the time your Heatrola is installed, you will be able to make a big saving in your fuel bills. Statistics show that the Heatrola saves, on an average, 45 per cent in fuel.

Solve the home heating problem now—once and for all. Get the facts, and sign up for membership in the Free Coal Club before Saturday night, August 20th.

Shine Your Back, Lady?

"Wide open spaces" left by fashionable evening gowns worn in London have produced a new profession in beauty culture back polishers. It is the duty of back polishers to transform into shining ivory the long neglected, because unreachable, sections of skin around and along the society woman's spine. What next?—Capper's Weekly.

When Is Tomorrow?

"Mother," said little Bobby, "have you any cake?"
"No," replied mother, "but I will make one tomorrow."
After deep study Bobby said: Mother, tell me when is tomorrow. Does it come after 'soon'?"

Apron for Little Girls;
It Can Be Easily Made

This little apron pattern combines many good features, says the Woman's Home Companion. Its chief asset is that it will not slip off the shoulders and little girls wearing it in cooking classes or at play will not be bothered by this nor by its pulling up at the back of the neck. The amount of material necessary has been cut to a minimum and the design is so simple that a little girl will have no difficulty in making it for herself.

Knee Bracelets Gaining Popularity in America

Knee bracelets, although not entirely new, are gradually being accepted by American women. No doubt it will be a long time before they achieve the place that the ankle bracelet now holds. This, by the way, is not so great as compared with the vogue it has had abroad for several years. These bracelets remind one of the fancy jeweled garters worn by knights of old. They are made of finely woven mesh with stone settings throughout, or else of links, and in both instances finished with very ornate clasps. A new bracelet is made of from eight to ten strands of small beads of silver, attached to a very fancy clasp that is set with a stone surrounded by smaller ones and much ornate metal work. This same bracelet may be secured in gold and steel finishes. Roped cords and chains in gold and silver plate are used singly or intertwined and set with stones and form very elaborate designs.

Feature Mannish Lines
in Viennese Lingerie

Some of the newest lingerie being made in Vienna is sky blue, Nile green or banana yellow and follows the masculine athletic line. There are short trunks with smoothly fitting yokes and vests cut straight and plain, edged with bias bands. Sometimes there is a monogram on the left side of the vest, and one house shows the monogram repeated on the yoke of the shorts.

Another fashion gaining favor with lingerie makers is nightgowns with cuffs and turnover collars like men's shirts. The three pieces make practical sets, particularly suitable for travel wear.

Waterproof Stockings
Now on English Market

Waterproof stockings have become popular with English women of fashion, and showers no longer cause rainmarks down the front of the stockings and mud splashes up the back. The waterproofing employed does not alter the appearance of the silk. Rain rolls off without leaving an impression and the application of a damp sponge removes mud stains. These stockings can be washed again and again without any ill effects.

Use Small Feather Fans
as Trimming on Frock

Among the original effects by designers to please the taste of the ultra-fashionable woman is a dance frock trimmed in small fans made of diamante and ostrich feathers. Another novelty is an evening frock with a breastplate of black velvet that is slipped over the head and fits snugly over the bodice of the frock. Another original effect in negligee robes is an embroidery in black of clefs and notes of music.

Natural Skin Tints Are Now Favored by Paris

After experimenting with green, mauve and yellow, Paris has gone back to natural skin tints. The fashionable make-up of the season is pink and natural flesh. The tan powders are seldom seen now and beauty parlors report a boom in the sale of rachel tints. Exaggeratedly bright lips, however, usually distinguish the make-up from nature's work.

ATLEE POMERENE HUNTS OIL SCANDAL WITNESSES
Senator Counsel For Government To Use New Law For Serving Subpoenas.

New York, Aug. 17.—Atlee Pomerene, counsel for the government in the Sinclair-Fall conspiracy trial, was bound for Europe today hopeful of effecting the return of two witnesses who have been sought since the start of the Teapot Dome investigation.
Before sailing at midnight with Mrs. Pomerene, the former Ohio Senator said the government probably would use a new law, permitting United States consuls to serve subpoenas in foreign countries, to summon Harry M. Blackmer, former chairman of the board of the Mid-West Refining Company, and James E. O'Neil, former president of the Prairie Oil and

Gas Company, back to the United States. Blackmer was last traced to Monaco and O'Neil was thought to be in Cyecho Slovakia.
Failure to obey summons, Mr. Pomerene said, makes the witness liable to a $100,000 fine which may be collected by levy on the witnesses property in this country.
The oil litigation already has been a highly remunerative undertaking for the government, Pomerene asserted. Between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 has been received from the California Naval Reserve, formerly held by the Doheny interests. He added $13,000,000 is yet to be paid for oil taken from the reserve during the Doheny tenancy.

Tracing Name's Origin
"Shirley" was probably originally a family name used as a Christian name. It is from the Old English "Scir plus leah," meaning "dweller at the white lea or cliff."

BASE BALL
The following letter from the management of the Mead Base Ball Club, Chillicothe, is self-explanatory:
"The coming Sunday the Circleville Eagle Base Ball Club has arranged to meet the Mead Ball Club at Meaco Park, Chillicothe, Ohio. Due to one of the members of the Central League dropping out, Circleville had this date open on their schedule and arrangements have been made whereby they will play this coming Sunday as stated above.
Due to a number of Chillicothe boys playing on the Circleville team, and also because of the amount of enthusiasm shown when Circleville and Chillicothe meet on the athletic field, it was the desire and hope of the Mead Management that such a game could be arranged this year. Consequently, they welcomed the overtures of Mr. Miller, Manager of the Circleville team at the time he mentioned the possibility of this game.
Last season the Mead Club defeated Circleville by a score of

8 to 7 early in the season and later by a score of 4 to 0. Both of these games were hard fought games and a large crowd attended from Circleville as well as a very large turnout of fans from Chillicothe. The Circleville Club no doubt has these defeats still in mind and welcomes this opportunity of somewhat evening the score. Thompson, Targee and Ray Allen are Chillicothe players who have a host of admirers in this city who will be pleased to see them in action Sunday, also as Circleville fans are acquainted with a number of Mead players, they will no doubt wish to take in this game."

Decide To End It All When Debts Stared Them In the Face.

Cleveland.—Desire for death today terminated the honeymoon of John Svensson and his 19-year-old bride, Louise, when they turned on the gas in their apartment and decided to end it all.
Mrs. Charles Taylor, a neighbor, smelled the gas when she attempted to gain entrance to the apartment.
Svensson was revived long enough to gasp, "We have been married two weeks. We owe $400 and decided to end it all." They were rushed to City Hospital, where attendants said their condition is critical.

Norway's National Saint

Saint Olaf, born in 905, became king of Norway and was a stern opponent of paganism. He was deposed and the crown offered to Canute, against whom Olaf fell fighting. He was buried in Trondheim cathedral, and became the national saint of Norway.

Old Maynard's Daughter

By CLARISSA MACKIE

(Copyright)

FRANK BURLERSON looked up from his desk as a clerk entered the office.

"Well, Simpson?" he queried.

"I wanted to see you just a moment. We have had a letter from old Mr. Maynard at Crow's Nest—you know, near the end of Long Island, and he is very anxious to make a new will—wants one of the firm to come out and see him as soon as possible."

"I seem to be the only firm member in town, Simpson, so I believe I will give myself an afternoon off and run out there. I will telephone to my man to pack my bag for me and bring it down. Tell Carr to put in my brief case the necessary papers and forms and so forth."

Having dismissed these matters, Mr. Burlerson returned to his work of planning what to do with an accumulated income, and about one o'clock he left the office building and headed toward Long Island.

As for Frank Burlerson himself, he was a very trim and good-looking young man.

The only son of a rich man, he had been carefully educated, most of his time being spent at educational institutions of note, while vacations had been spent in foreign travel. His mother had died long ago, and his father was taking a vacation at White Sulphur Springs.

Girls did not interest Frank much. Once his father had asked him when he was going to get married, and Frank had murmured, "When I can find an old-fashioned girl!" How his father had laughed, and then the older man had suggested, "Old Maynard's daughter would suit you, Frank!"

Since then, Frank had heard more about "old Maynard's daughter." One of the older clerks had hinted that she was rather a strong-minded, not-so-young lady, and Frank had forgotten his father's joke.

Late that afternoon, Frank Burlerson drove his car up the long avenue of pine trees that led to Crow's Nest, the home of the Maynard family.

"Mr. Maynard is expecting you, sir," said the butler who opened the door, "but he is lying down. He suggested that perhaps you would go into the garden and talk to Miss Peggy."

"Out of luck," groaned Burlerson, and just then he turned the corner of the house and stood stock-still with amazement. Before him spread a glorious expanse of old-fashioned gardens, colorful, perfumed, with the broad expanse of the sea beyond, blue, appealing—he stepped into the first path and walked toward the sea, forgetting all about Miss Peggy Maynard.

With his eyes on the sea, yet smelling mignonette, pinks, heliotrope, roses and a dozen other enchanting fragrances, Frank Burlerson went straight into the trap of Fate.

"Oh, is it Mr. Burlerson?" inquired a sweet voice.

"Yes," said Frank, and turned around, looking for the speaker, and hearing a faint gurgle of laughter he looked down, and there she was sitting on a bit of clipped grass with her lap full of pansies and mignonette—not the austere lady he had expected, but the most charming bit of femininity that he had ever met.

She scrambled to her feet. Red hair? Yes, indeed, cut short, but waving deliciously close to a snow white neck—a peaches and cream complexion—greeny-blue eyes and a fascinating nose.

"How do you do, Mr. Burlerson?" she said politely. "Grandfather and Aunt Margaret rode over to Greenport this morning and they are both tired. They asked me to entertain you and to say that, of course, you would spend the night?"

"I left my bag at the hotel," explained Burlerson regretfully.

"We can drive over and get it; do you mind?" asked Miss Peggy Maynard as they sat down on a marble bench.

"I bet she's engaged," said Burlerson, out loud, just like that. And immediately turned scarlet. She stared at him, blushed and murmured—"Oh, no indeed, not at all," and then she, too, blushed.

After that, somehow, things went better. Frank Burlerson told her of his surprise at seeing her there.

"Then you were surprised to see me!" she exclaimed. "Not as surprised as I was to see you, though, Mr. Burlerson. I have seen your father, you know, and so I expected to see a very fine-looking elderly man who looked as if he was missing his golf!"

"That's Dad!" laughed Frank. "Sorry to disappoint you," he added, and when she turned away her ruddy head, he could see a bit of the bright color that flushed her cheek.

The next morning he went back to New York, fully aware that he was deeply in love with Peggy Maynard, granddaughter of the old man, and niece of the strong-minded Miss Maynard, who developed to be a handsome white-haired lady of much dignity and charm.

Shortly after that, young Mr. Burlerson developed a state of health that required a period of rest on the east end of Long Island. There is only one proper ending to this story, anyway, and that is the way it happened. Frank Burlerson and Peggy Maynard were married and lived happily ever after!

STAMPEDE AND GREAT RODEO AT STATE FAIR

---$20,000 in Prizes.

Entries in the International Stampede and Rodeo which will be held in Columbus during the Ohio State fair, from August 25 to September 5, have come in at such a rate that this rodeo promises to have the largest number of cowboys that have ever entered at any stampede in the East.

Thursday fifty cowboys, including several from the Caribou Hills of British Columbia, are leaving Vancouver for Columbus. All have entered in the rodeo to compete for the $20,000 offered in prizes. They receive no remuneration for their services, and all they receive will be the prizes they win.

Already one hundred head of horses have been received at the State fair grounds, where they will be kept until time for the fair. All these horses are reported in excellent condition.

Of the sixty-five entries for the world's championship in bronk riding only nine qualified remain. All the others have been declared ineligible at recent rodeos. The nine remaining will compete for the championship at the rodeo which is to be at the fair.

Pete Knight, Crossfield, Alberta, won the Canadian championship at the rodeo held there, and he will remain for the rodeo at the Ohio State fair.

The noted horse "Midnight" has upheld his record thruout the entire season, maintaining the record of throwing his rider every time thus far this year. "Tumblewood," another horse which will be at the Ohio State fair, succeeded in the rodeo at Vancouver in bucking off the winner of the Calgary Stampede.

TIRED?

OF course you're tired of all the extra cleaning that is necessary during the summer months, when wide-opened windows invite all the outdoor dust. Of course you begrudge more than ever—on these beautiful summer days—the extra time that this cleaning takes.

Let The Greater Hoover assume that task for you. With its amazing cleaning principle, "Positive Agitation," it can do a better cleaning job than you have ever dreamed possible—remove 131% more dirt in ordinary cleaning time than even the best previous Hoover!

Surely, you won't try to go through the summer without this great help. Particularly when you realize how easily you can have The Greater Hoover—paying for it in small monthly amounts. Phone for demonstration. Liberal allowance for your old cleaner. No obligation for appraisal.

"Positive Agitation" may now be had not only in the famous Model 700 Hoover, but in a new popular-priced Hoover as well.

ATLEE POMERENE HUNTS OIL SCANDAL WITNESSES

Senator Counsel For Government To Use New Law For Serving Subpoenas.

New York, Aug. 17.—Atlee Pomerene, counsel for the government in the Sinclair-Fall conspiracy trial, was bound for Europe today hopeful of effecting the return of two witnesses who have been sought since the start of the Teapot Dome investigation.

Before sailing at midnight with Mrs. Pomerene, the former Ohio Senator said the government probably would use a new law, permitting United States consuls to serve subpoenas in foreign countries, to summon Harry M. Blackmer, former chairman of the board of the Mid-West Refining Company, and James E. O'Neil, former president of the Prairie Oil and

Gas Company, back to the United States. Blackmer was last traced to Monaco and O'Neil was thought to be in Czecho Slovakia.

Failure to obey summons, Mr. Pomerene said, makes the witness liable to a $100,000 fine which may be collected by levy on the witnesses property in this country.

The oil litigation already has been a highly remunerative undertaking for the government, Pomerene asserted. Between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000 has been received from the California Naval Reserve, formerly held by the Doheny interests. He added $13,000,000 is yet to be paid for oil taken from the reserve during the Doheny tenancy.

Tracing Name's Origin
"Shirley" was probably originally a family name used as a Christian name. It is from the Old English "Scir plus leah," meaning "dweller at the white lea or cliff."

BASE BALL

The following letter from the management of the Mead Base Ball Club, Chillicothe, is self-explanatory:

"The coming Sunday the Circleville Eagle Base Ball Club has arranged to meet the Mead Ball Club at Meaco Park, Chillicothe, Ohio. Due to one of the members of the Central League dropping out, Circleville had this date open on their schedule and arrangements have been made whereby they will play this coming Sunday as stated above.

Due to a number of Chillicothe boys playing on the Circleville team, and also because of the amount of enthusiasm shown when Circleville and Chillicothe meet on the athletic field, it was the desire and hope of the Mead Management that such a game could be arranged this year. Consequently, they welcomed the overtures of Mr. Miller, Manager of the Circleville team at the time he mentioned the possibility of this game.

Last season the Mead Club defeated Circleville by a score of

8 to 7 early in the season and later by a score of 4 to 0. Both of these games were hard fought games and a large crowd attended from Circleville as well as a very large turnout of fans from Chillicothe. The Circleville Club no doubt has these defeats still in mind and welcomes this opportunity of somewhat evening the score. Thompson, Targee and Ray Allen are Chillicothe players who have a host of admirers in this city who will be pleased to see them in action Sunday, also as Circleville fans are acquainted with a number of Mead players, they will no doubt wish to take in this game."

Sundial Shadows
In the southern hemisphere the shadow on a sundial travels counter clockwise. As the hands of the earliest clocks moved in the direction of a sundial shadow, our clocks would have hands moving from right to left if they had been made there.

NEWLYWEDS TAKE GAS

Decide To End It All When Debts Stared Them In the Face.

Cleveland.—Desire for death today terminated the honeymoon of John Svensson and his 19-year-old bride, Louise, when they turned on the gas in their apartment and decided to end it all.

Mrs. Charles Taylor, a neighbor, smelled the gas when she attempted to gain entrance to the apartment.

Svensson was revived long enough to gasp, "We have been married two weeks. We owe $400 and decided to end it all." They were rushed to City Hospital, where attendants said their condition is critical.
